LegalDesign grows up

The screenshot shows the homepage of LegalDesign.it. At the top, there's a dark blue header with the site name "LegalDesign.it" and a navigation menu with links to Home, News, Tools, Calendar, Contacts, and Legaldesigners. Below the header, a banner for a media sponsor from the University of Perugia's Laboratory of Legal Design is displayed. The main content area features a large teal water droplet graphic above the text "Keep it Simple". To the left, there's a section titled "Where" with a location pin icon and a note about being on a Facebook group. In the center, there's a section titled "We come from" with a location pin icon and a list of countries: Poland, Finland, UK, France, Greece, Spain, Italy, and Germany. To the right, there's a section titled "About Us" with a person icon and a description of the group's purpose: to improve the visual shaping of legal concepts. The background has abstract geometric shapes like circles and triangles.

There's an international place for legal designers. It is on legaldesign.it.

In the latest months it grew up consistently.

It interacts with Facebook, Trello (coming soon), Google Calendar and it is based on a group on Facebook.

Events and initiatives are submitted by legaldesigners around the world.

Last month we even had a lab with Canada on a real issue.

If you are interested in it, contact Spataro on the website or on facebook.
